Paul J. McNulty, United States Attorney for the Eastern District of Virginia, announced that Allan Douglas Winters, age 36, of Vienna, Virginia, was sentenced today to 63 months in prison by the Honorable Claude M. Hilton, Senior U.S. District Judge. Winters, who had taught elementary school in Northern Virginia, was convicted of possession of child pornography.

Winters had subscribed to an Internet website that provided child pornography movies. In addition to working as a substitute teacher for Fairfax County Schools in the past, Winters had taught elementary school students at a private school in Herndon, Virginia, until June 2005. Winters also had a photography business and occasionally babysat young students.

The case was investigated by the Bureau of Immigration and Customs Enforcement. The prosecution of the case was handled by Assistant United States Attorney Gerald J. Smagala.
